1. Morality Police

Morality Police - Titled in reference to Iran's morality police. Really a protest painting in solidarity with those against the dictatorship.
Felix Harris

2. Death to the Dictator

Death to the Dictator - like the above painting in protest.
Felix Harris

3. Instructions (Sexy Land)

Instructions (Sexy Land) - a letter to the urban sprawl. 'Life is one big road with lots of signs. So when you're riding through the ruts, don't complicate your mind.' From 'Wake Up and Live,' Bob Marley and the Wailers.

Felix Harris

4. ? Hang in There Baby or The Worlds That Were

NO IMAGE

Hang in there Baby - It reminds me of a cat perhaps dangling from a tree branch with the words - hang in there baby. A hopeful painting to remind us not to give up.

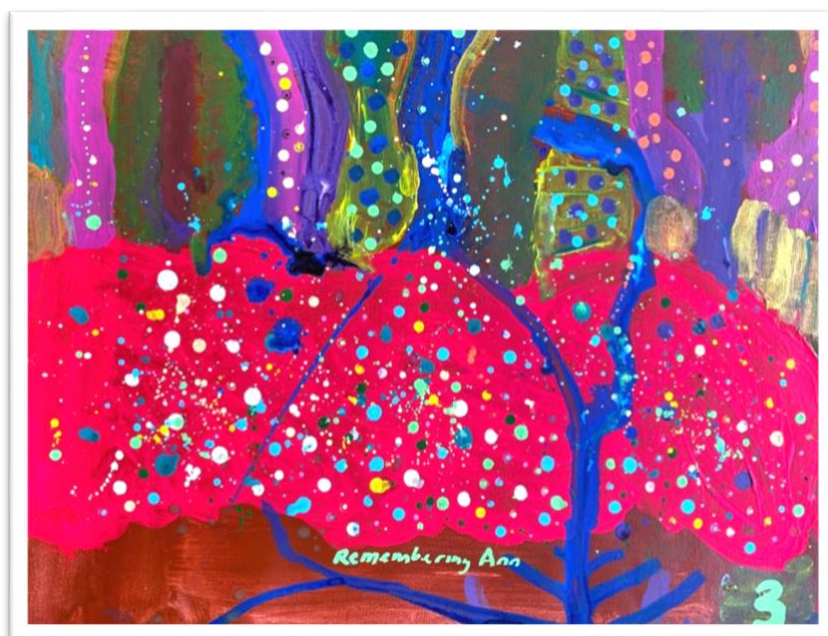

Felix Harris

5. ? Hang in There Baby or The Worlds That Were

The Worlds that Were - from an article of the same name found in the New York Times about Islamic rule in Spain, 'In Search of a Lost Spain.' There is something about loss in the painting perhaps a poetic sadness.

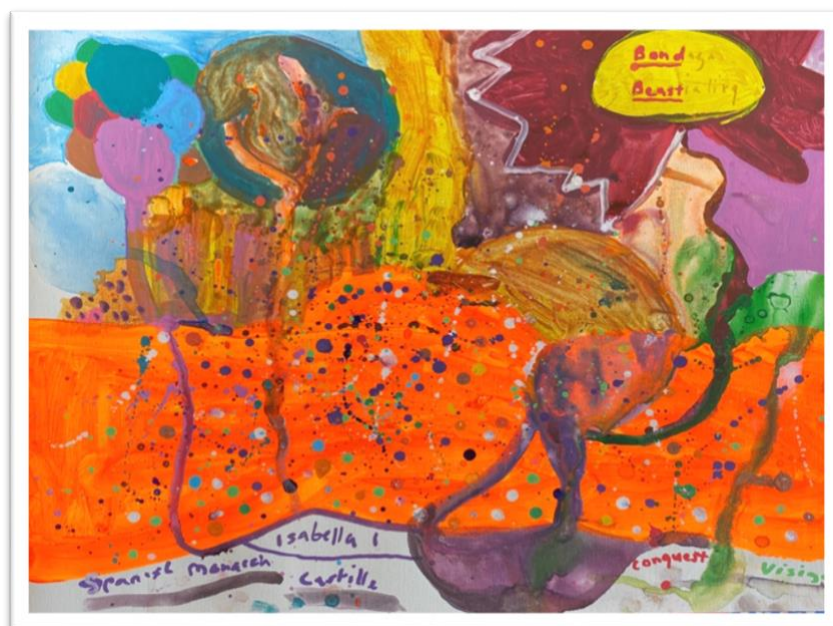

Felix Harris

6. Remembering Anna

Remembering Ann - Ann Quin the British novelist author of 'the unmapped country, stories and fragments'. The painting is a celebration rich in colour, vibrancy.

7. Conquest

Conquest - The conquest by Spain, a kind of bondage undertaken by monarchs. A rich tapestry.
Felix Harris.
